Claims 12,13

R. Item V

Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

- Reference is made to the following documents: 1.
 - D1: WO 96 00006 A
 - D2: READ T -A ET AL: INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF DEVELOPMENTAL NEUROSCIENCE, vol. 17, no. 5/06, 1999, pages 653-663 & US 5 800 829 A D3: WO 99 00510 A -& Invitrogen, 'T-REx System. A tetracycline-regulated expression system for mammalian cells.', version D, 1999-2000 D4: NO D. ET AL.: PROC. NATL. ACAD. SCI. USA, vol. 93, 1996, pages 3346-3351 - WO 99 58155 A - Invitrogen, 'Ecdysone-inducible mammalian expression system. An inducible gene expression system for mammalian cells utilizing the ecdysone analog Ponasterone A', Version E, 1998-2000
- 2. Novelty and inventive step is acknowledged for the subject-matter of claims 1-26. The reasons for this are as follows.
- 2.1. The document D1, which appears to represent the closest prior art document, discloses cells containing polynucleotide constructs comprising a regulated promoter linked to a coding sequence for nitric oxide synthase (NOS). The cells are suggested for use in therapy, for instance of tumours.
- 2.2. The polynucleotide of claim 15(a) is distinguished from those of D1 in that the promoter is responsive to ecdysone or an analog thereof. Example 6 of the application shows that microencapsulated cells containing the claimed polynucleotides plus the inducer ponasterone A inhibited the growth of cancer cells in vivo. The technical problem posed was thus the provision of polynucleotide constructs which when introduced into cells render these cells suitable for inhibition of cancer cells in vivo. Although D1 suggests the use of recombinant NOS containing cells in therapy, e.g. tumours, it could not be expected from any of the available prior art documents (see D1 and D2) that the specific construct of claim 15(a) could indeed be used for the treatment of cancer. Therefore, an inventive step is acknowledged for claim 15(a).

- 2.3. The polynucleotide of claim 15(b) is distinguished from those of D1 in that the promoter is operably linked to one or more tetracycline operator site sequence. While Figures 9 and 10 of D1 show that the maximum level of NOS expression achieved in mammalian cells using a retroviral vector was in the order of 30 nM/10⁶ cells, Figure 3 of the present application shows that levels of expression of over 100 $\mu\text{M}/10^6$ were achieved when using the polynucleotide construct of claim 15(b). The technical problem posed was thus the provision of nucleotide constructs suitable for the production of viable cells which express NOI and are capable of producing NO at considerably higher levels than D1. In view of the fact that cellular toxicity of NO was a known problem (see D1, page 46, line 31 to page 47, line 5), it appears that a person skilled in the art would not have reasonably expected that cells containing the claimed constructs would be viable and express NOS at such high levels. Therefore, an inventive step is acknowledged for claim 15(b).
- 2.4. Consequently, an inventive step is also acknowledged for claims 1-14 and 16-26.
- 3. For the assessment of the present claims 12 and 13 on the question whether they are industrially applicable, no unified criteria exist in the PCT Contracting States. The patentability can also be dependent upon the formulation of the claims. The EPO, for example, does not recognize as industrially applicable the subject-matter of claims to the use of a compound in medical treatment, but may allow, however, claims to a known compound for first use in medical treatment and the use of such a compound for the manufacture of a medicament for a new medical treatment.

Re Item VIII

Certain observations on the international application

4. The application does not meet the requirements of Article 6 PCT because the claims are not clear.

The term "functional variant" is unclear and meaningless in claims 1 and 15. Any expression product having nitric oxide synthase activity would anyway appear to be a nitric oxide synthase (NOS).

INTERNATIONAL PRELIMINARY International application No. PCT/GB00/02924 EXAMINATION REPORT - SEPARATE SHEET

The term "analog" used in claims 1, 14, 15 and 19, which has no precise art-recognized meaning, is vague and indefinite and renders the scope of these claims unclear. Accordingly, the term "functional variant" is unclear in claim 25. The term "substantially" renders claims 4 and 5 unclear.

4. The application does not meet the requirements of Article 6 PCT because the claims are not clear.

The term "functional variant" is unclear and meaningless in claims 1 and 15. Any expression product having nitric oxide synthase activity would anyway appear to be a nitric oxide synthase (NOS).

International application No. PCT/GB00/02924

EXAMINATION REPORT - SEPARATE SHEET

The term "analog" used in claims 1, 14, 15 and 19, which has no precise artrecognized meaning, is vague and indefinite and renders the scope of these claims unclear. Accordingly, the term "functional variant" is unclear in claim 25. The term "substantially" renders claims 4 and 5 unclear.
